

Veteran U.S. Biologist On Way To Alaska Area Has No Fear Of Japs

Who's afraid of the bad little Jap? Certainly not C. E. Gillham, United States government biologist, of Edwarsville, Illinois.

Mr. Gillham was in Edmonton Friday, headed in the direction of Alaska, the Bering straits and the Aleutian Islands, to study the habits of the millions of American sportmen in the far away south.

And while the devastation and flame of a world war rages and crackles around him Mr. Gillham will calmly go about the very peaceful business of conducting a census of Alaska, food and game, charting biologic trends of water fowl and animals on behalf of the millions of American sportmen in the far away south.

SOURDOUGH
The north and its harsh ways is old stuff to Mr. Gillham.

This is his eighth trip to the far north. Six summers were spent by the U.S. biologist in the Canadian Arctic regions. He has been as far north as Victoria Island. On former occasions he was flown in and out of the Canadian north by Canadian Airways Ltd. pilots.

OLD PAIS
Matt Barry, "Wop" Man and Co. Farrell, all famous bath pilots, have taxed the U.S. biologist many thousands of miles through the far northern skies.

"I have flown many times with military pilots but I still have the greatest admiration for the Canadian bush pilot. They are magnificent fliers," Mr. Gillham declared.

The American will travel many thousands of miles along the Alaskan coast, during the coming summer. He is actually going to a new job and his headquarters will be at Juneau, Alaska.

From now on he will survey another wild life in addition to water fowl.

He will therefore remain in Alaska the year-round. Formerly, when the surveys were limited to water fowl, Mr. Gillham returned to the United States at the end of the summer.

NOT AT ALL "DORIED"
He was asked what he would do if the Japanese tried an invasion of Alaska while he is carrying on his work up there.

"I'm not worried. I will have a radio with me and I'll be in an invasion try I would just keep on doing my job and my main signal station in Alaska and keep up."

"Can you direct me to the camp kitchen?"

Cannot Display Rubber Products
TORONTO, April 10.—(CP)—An order from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board to retailers Thursday prohibited merchants from displaying their store windows or advertising in any way any rubber products ordinarily used by civilians.

Groups of articles coming under the new ruling include trunks, bath toys, rubber caps and bathing suits, rubber footers, shoes with rubber soles, rubber gloves and hot water bottles, pump and garden hose, rubber boots, balls of all kinds including basketballs, footballs, basketballs and punnballs and rubber slippers.

Mail order catalogues may continue to display rubber products but after July 15, 1942 is permitted to carry an illustration of any of the products mentioned in the order.

On the other hand, the provision in a pinch I'd travel by night and have up in the daytime. I've been in the bush a long time, my life, I think I could avoid capture."

The biologist has been 18 years with the U.S. government and has worked in Canada, Alaska, and in addition to the many years spent in the far north.

He explained that wild fowl fly south in the fall and north in the spring by the millions in the North American continent.

ON MIDDLE FLIGHT
Mr. Gillham is in charge of surveys in the middle flyway. This area includes the Mississippi and Mackenzie river basins. The flyway is shaped like a funnel, with the tapered point at Edmonton.

Under the new order a "cellar" price to be paid to the dealer has been established. The price to be paid by the individual selling to the dealer will be slightly below this price to allow for handling and loading costs.

He lives in two locations in the U.S. and in Canada for that matter. One location is in the U.S. and the other location was the game bird in the U.S. and in Canada.

"Uncle Sam tries to place both parties and it's quite a job," Mr. Gillham declared.

Canadians Drafted In U.S. For Military Service May Elect To Enter Own Forces

OTTAWA, April 10.—(CP)—Canadians in the United States who have not applied for citizenship and who are called in the American selective service draft may elect to serve under their own flag under an arrangement made public here Thursday.

The new measure was completed in a series of three dates and provides that Canadians conscripted under the amended United States selective service system may choose to volunteer for service with the Canadian full-time forces, if they so desire, and elect their desire for United States citizenship.

The provisions of the arrangement are fully reciprocal and the Canadian note mentioned the possibility that Canada, right later formally declare all Canadians, wherever they are, to be liable for compulsory military service.

Those taking advantage of the arrangement to return for service in Canada, will be in the status of volunteers prepared to serve anywhere they may be sent.

It is impossible to estimate the number of Canadians in the United States who will elect to serve in the forces of Canada, but there are probably 20,000 who, in the last few weeks and months, will be classified I-A under the draft law, rendering them subject to induction in the United States army.

Thus Canadians living in the United States will be the first of their countrymen to become liable in the armed forces outside the Dominion.

The procedure for a Canadian in the United States called in the draft law has not applied for citizenship will be to apply for transfer to the Canadian army.

U.S. DOCTORS EXAMINE
He will be examined by American army doctors who will submit his medical record to the Canadian authorities. If he is acceptable to them transportation will be provided to the nearest Canadian enlistment point.

The grantees will first be sent to the Canadian army but may be transferred through the commanding officer, for transfer to the navy or air force.

American in Canada at present are not liable for compulsory service.

Reserve Army Pay To Remain At Same Level

OTTAWA, April 10.—(CP)—Pay for the Canadian reserve army, now being enlarged and revitalized, will continue on the existing basis, at rates slightly below those of the active army, national defence department spokesman said yesterday.

Basic pay for privates in the reserve is $12.00 a day against $13.00 for privates in the active army. Pay for higher ranks shows a corresponding deviation from that allowed the men of the active force.

Officers and men in the Canadian reserve army are entitled to ration and shelter at public expense while in training camps and to transportation to and from camp.

TRAINING DAY
A training day at camp for drill purposes is 24 hours but for drill and training at local headquarters as half-days.

Church parades, small arms training periods of inspection, if they last two hours or more, are counted as half-days.

London Press Lauds Gallant Yank Defence

LONDON, April 10.—(CP)—The London morning press has lauded the gallant defence of the island of Malta, which was heavily on British, who have been watching the last-ditch defence of the island.

"The whole world of free men," said the Mail, "will join in paying tribute to the magnificent stand made by the American and Filipino troops in the Philippine Islands. They have written a chapter of stubborn heroism which will never be forgotten."

The delaying action in the Philippines has been of the utmost value to the Allies, the Mail said.

The New Chronicle, calling the campaign "A defence that astonished the world," said: "The long-vaunted resistance will end with the defence of Malta, Tobruk and Sevastopol against the outstanding episodes of the war."

Norwegian Fleet Grows To 60 Ships

Eden Announces Advance Polls For Plebiscite Vote Planned

LONDON, April 10.—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, in a broadcast tribute to the Norwegian people last night, said their navy had grown from two destroyers, a single submarine and a few smaller vessels which served May 1940, to 60 warships today.

Eden said that 300 Norwegian merchantmen, totalling over 3,500,000 tons, "play night and day in the country's cause."

The advance polls will be open between the hours of 2 and 10 o'clock in the afternoon and evening on the Thursday, Friday and Saturday immediately preceding the date fixed as plebiscite poll day.

The privilege of voting at an advance poll is extended only to a limited number. Among those who may take advantage of the advance poll are commercial travellers and persons employed in transportation services who, by nature of their employment, are necessarily absent from their place of residence.

Why Parity Prices?

A subscriber to The Bulletin writes to ask what is meant by parity prices for the farmer.

Briefly, the answer is this: a price for what the farmer has to sell in relation to what the farmer has to pay for what he buys.

Taking the year 1926 as normal, or as representing a parity, when the farmer received for his products and paid for what he bought, we find that the farmer has been receiving 45 per cent for his products and the public about 50 per cent more for what he buys.

No industry can remain solvent under such conditions, and that is why the majority of the farmers in the three prairie provinces were forced into bankruptcy.

To avoid wholesale evictions of farmers from their farms through mortgage foreclosures, the Dominion Government, in co-operation with the provinces, devised the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act, with power in the hands of a Board of Review to reduce the farmers' mortgage and interest charges to the potential productive value of the land when worked by an efficient farmer.

This looked like a fair solution to the farmer's problem, and thousands of cases were handled under the Act, at considerable expense. But the settlements proved worthless due to the low prices for what the farmer had to sell.

The only way to meet the present plight of the farmer is to do what President Roosevelt did in the United States. First, a government agency was set up to advance the farmer loans, with interest at three per cent, the principal repayments spread over twenty years. Another government agency raised the prices of farm products to parity with the prices of goods the farmer had to purchase.

The result is that today the farmers of the United States own their farms and are operating at a profit, as our producers.

Canada has advanced hundreds of millions of dollars to build war industries and has turned these huge war plants over to private management with instructions to produce, produce and produce—a guaranteed profit of five per cent on everything.

Cost means nothing as munitions, guns, ships, etc., are vital to our all-out war effort.

Food is just as essential and basic in our war effort as these things. Why, then, should the Dominion Government not extend the same conditions of production to Canadian farmers?

Again, Planes Versus Ships

British naval power suffered a heavy blow in the destruction of the Prince of Wales and the Dorsetshire. These were British gun cruisers of 10,000 tons, a type of ship admirably adapted for hunting down aircraft carriers, and this was apparently the mission on which the lost vessels were engaged somewhere in the Bay of Bengal. They were sunk—like the Prince of Wales and the Dorsetshire—by the Japanese, and their loss emphasizes the warning of that former double-disaster—warships without air protection are as vulnerable as an army in the same circumstances.

If naval authorities are slow to learn this lesson they are singularly obtuse. The fate of the two British cruisers off Malaya was surely plain enough demonstration of the fact. It may be that the Cornwall and Dorsetshire had such protection but that it was unable to ward off the blows which destroyed them; that will be cleared up when the details are known. The one cheering word in the announcement is that 1,100 of the combined crews of the two ships were saved. The loss of the ships is particularly serious because they were on duty when the Japanese naval power cannot be strong at present and where it is badly needed.

Bataan Will Be Remembered

The men at Bataan have held out longer than anyone supposed they could. They have repulsed the attack of the marines at Wake Island, and, at the same time, the defence of the peninsula will be for all time a fine instance of courage and resolution matched against overwhelming odds.

The men of the United Nations have been thrilled and their fortitude strengthened by the fragmentary reports which came from that battered outpost. Because of the desperate resistance there, time has been gained to pour men and munitions into Australia, and the military position of that Dominion is in the most favorable state due to the timing up of huge enemy forces in the siege of the rocky hill across the bay from distant Mind.

There was no possibility of reinforcing the garrison from outside or of running in supplies to replace its out-worn weapons and dwindling stores. Capture of the place was inevitable, if enough men and machines were mustered for the assault. But it has cost the enemy four months of continuous fighting, the loss of many thousands of soldiers and of large numbers of naval craft and airplanes.

Allied soldiers and airmen have fought engagement in any part of the world will be inspired by the remembrance of how splendidly a few stood out against so many at Bataan.

Adolf Lost Five Divisions

There are five Nazi armored divisions which will not get into the fighting lines in Russia. These are the divisions which would have been armed with the tanks and trucks destroyed by the R.A.F. in two raids on factories in the Washington area. The factories were so wrecked, these raids accomplished as much—to assist Russia and weaken the Axis—as the destruction of ten or perhaps twenty divisions in battle. To prevent a tank getting into action is better than to blow one to pieces after it has already done the enemy some service. To blow a factory to pieces is equivalent to destroying all the tanks it would have turned out in months of operation.

This type of warfare may be less spectacular than blitzkrieging, but it is just as effective—and much cheaper in terms of men and money. When a bomber is shot down over enemy territory four or five men are killed or captured. But a single shell from a tank-cannon can kill that many men in battle. At a modest expenditure, these two raids into the Paris area saved the Russians some thousands of soldiers.

Canadians will note with satisfaction that some of the planes which did good piece of work were manned by Canadian airmen. And the reports give them credit for hitting what they aimed at.

The Rome radio broadcast a fantastic story that Nazi forces have captured 4,000,000 Russians and killed "thousands of many." If the Duke's army army have been seriously damaged, his propaganda brigade is still going strong on the home front.

American Flying Postresses, operating from bases in India, struck a telling blow at Japanese naval forces in the recently captured island of Ceylon. The presence on the scene may be more important to the fighting in Burma than the fact that the flying postresses have been pushed back by the Japanese. These troops have been without air protection, the airmen who were formerly doing such good work in Burma have evidently been transferred to Australia. If they are now to have a "ceiling," better news may be expected from that front.

Having failed to capture Port Moresby by air and also by land, the Japanese are now reported to be preparing an attempt to take it by sea. The Australian-Allied air forces will rather expect such an attempt, for the distances from their bases to the scene of battle would be too great for the Japanese to make a successful attack on enemy ships. That Tokyo will risk plane carriers and heavy cruisers in the relatively narrow strait which separates Australia from New Guinea seems, however, rather doubtful. If so, it will be a strategy of desperation rather than of choice.

Assurances were given that the matter would receive the earnest attention of the Government. Immigration buildings were referred to. It is understood that these will be built on the north bank of the river.

Too Many Patriots

Overstaffing and Confusion Slowing American War Effort

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

My friends ask me why I don't speak more of the patriotism which is getting "oriented," as they say. Well, there are several reasons. One is that it is impossible to find any patriotism in Washington unless you park yourself on the streets and see the thousands of cars parked there at all hours of the day.

Another reason is that in Washington it is difficult to see the woods for the trees. The third is that there is an atmosphere of strain over every office, a feeling of being a slave to the machine, a feeling of being a slave to the machine, a feeling of being a slave to the machine.

Another reason is that whenever I go to Washington I get that the country is too complacent; someone asks anxiously whether the situation of the country is too good.

Quiet Men

I don't have any such feeling if I go to an airplane factory. I see quiet men in their shirts and ties, and they are all hunched on the back of their heads, doing perfectly gigantic work without atmosphere of strain whatsoever.

The reason is that these men have made a decision about a specific piece of work, that how- ever during its scope it is within the compass of their own knowledge and ability; that the men who are planning, managing and working on that job understand it and if they have no more to say about it, they are not setting up any of those "I know" attitudes which are exactly the opposite of what they are doing all the time.

Quiet Men

Now compare this with Washington. The free agencies are proliferating like guinea pigs. They have been set up without knowing exactly what they were set up for. It would appear that the men who are setting up these agencies were to take away the job from somebody else, but they have been doing it, but didn't seem able to.

They are setting up the cabinet, and fixing responsibility in the cabinet, a hundred superfluous cabinets have been set up. Instead of fixing a few authorities, scores of authorities are warring with each other in a jungle of red tape. So much of this is at cross purposes inside the government that the major purpose has become minor.

The major purpose is to accomplish a task which will contribute to the winning of the war, but the minor purpose of maintaining and perpetuating itself has taken precedence over this major purpose.

A Lesson In Thrift

FROM THE PRINTED WORD (TORONTO)

The thrift enforced upon Canadians by the government during the war may seem drastic in comparison with the careless squandering of pre-war days. But when they would have said a few years ago that the government would be so strict for their own purposes as much as the income and the expenditure of the government, they would have been in the course of a year.

For this generation, one must expect those of Scottish descent. A former bank manager, a former school teacher, a former lawyer, a former doctor, a former farmer, a former boy from Scotland to work as a clerk. One capable lad was sent to him in a junior in a Montreal bank.

The manager had no fault to find with the boy's work. He was quick, intelligent and obliging. In fact it was not until the end of the boy's first year that the manager found anything that needed looking into.

What he then discovered was that the young clerk had a savings account, and on a salary of $800 a year had managed to save $100.

The manager couldn't discover any evidence that the boy had been gambling, and the branch's cash was in perfect order. But the clerk had been before him, and after a few indirect questions that elicited no personal information, asked him bluntly how he managed to live on $700 a year.

The clerk grinned. "Ah, sir," he said, "if you now you're a clerk, you're a clerk. Here's the way of it. When I came to work for my first employer, I had enough money to last me a year. Then I got myself a room a few streets away from the bank, so I have no tram fare. The room's over a shop, and I keep the owner's books for him in the evening, so I get the room free. Then there's a street light just outside my window, so I'm at no expense for my light. In fact, if it hadn't been for my good appetite, I'd have saved the whole six hundred."

More And Better Criticism

Stiffening Public Opinion Is Highly Dangerous In Time of War

By HAROLD L. WEIR

One disturbing splash of murk in the present Canadian picture is the tendency on the part of a good many people to decry open criticism of the official excuse for press and public protest.

Indeed, the coincidence is so marked that one might almost lay it down as a fundamental principle of war-time democracy; that the steam which makes the government wheels go around is generated by the heat under John Citizen's collar.

Censorship

Press censorship in Canada is sensible and highly efficient in the whole.

Every one of the Canadian press censors used to be a good newspaper man so it must be assumed that, while a letter is written to an editor for what we call "the public good," we would call it a "public good" if we could.

One instance of such a thing was where the editor of a struggling and honestly printed weekly was urged to better the editorial matter of justice into investigating cases of detention of citizens without trial.

In another and more recent instance, a censor rebuked an editor for reporting a meeting of town council wherein a resolution had been passed calling for more protection of a vital point; the censor when it emanated from the mayor of Windsor, Ontario.

The editor with the sore throat was so perturbed by the wonders if the rebuke in his case was occasioned by his editorial detestation of the official excuse for non-protection—that the expense would be too great.

Smothering There are other current Canadian instances giving rise to the suspicion that attempts are sometimes made to smother criticism.

Success in smothering criticism is not long makes it a threat to liberty within the country but, if it continues for Canada to do her part in winning the war.

If we are to hold up our heads in future generations, it must be assumed that, while a letter is written to an editor for what we call "the public good," we would call it a "public good" if we could.

Looking Over

AMONG other things the war is changing our ideas of what a practical course of swimming instruction should include. This incidentally is something in which about everyone now has more than an academic interest in view of the high toll submarines are taking of ships at sea.

The United States navy has radically altered the fundamental instruction it gives its men in swimming, the changes being made as a result of bitter experiences at sea since war started.

The old course called for a job to be taught to swim a short distance at high speed, using only one stroke. The idea behind this was that a short sprint would probably carry the sailor back to a lifeboat, raft or some floating object. Now he is taught to stay afloat for a long time using any stroke he prefers.

Particular stress is also being placed on swimming under water. All naval cadets must learn to swim at least 20 yards under water. The purpose of this is to escape from burning oil spread over the surface, an added hazard that has come with the almost universal use of oil burning craft. You 20 yards under water, pop up like a cork, grab your lungs full of fresh air and go under again and repeat the process until you are clear of the burning oil.

A third new idea in emergency swimming is that no clothing except the shoes should be discarded. It has been found that wrecked sailors who retained their clothing came through with less suffering from cold and exposure.

Little or no attention is being given to the art of diving. If you have to jump overboard and are not a good diver, it is best to jump in feet first—and hold either your breath or your nose.

Incidentally this course in emergency swimming might well be included in the training of soldiers and airmen in view of the fact that they are likely to find themselves in this most unfortunate of all wars.

Thisa And Thata Data

JUDGING from the comment of folks who phoned last night for results of the Toronto-Detroit hockey battle, the Maple Leafs have few if any friends in this town. Detroit victory was received with unmistakable glee. This is probably due to the fact that Toronto is about the only N.H.L. club which has no Edmontonians on its roster.

A friend, who is on the inside of the automobile business, tells me that if cars can be kept rolling on their present rubber for a year that satisfactory substitutes will be ready by then. That is the word from the hub of the industry in Detroit. Just what the substitutes will be is a closely kept secret for the time being. North America is one continent that simply must be kept on wheels if it is to function at all efficiently.

Francis Williams, warden at the Minniskie game preserve near Edmonton, thought for a few minutes on April 1 that he was playing a trick on him. Flocks of mallards, which he estimated totaled at least 1,500, were circling around the lake despite the fact that it was still frozen over. It is rarely, if ever, that mallards have come north to the Edmonton area at so early a date. Numbers of yellowlegs also are at Minniskie now.

When it comes to solid weight, Boston Braves can boast of the heaviest pair of catchers in baseball—Johnny Hutchinson at 235 and Mike Lombardi at 225.

Speaking of baseball, here are a couple of items from the 1941 expense account of the Brooklyn Dodgers: 8,115 hats at $1.20 each and 2,700 bats at $2.50 each.

Remember Zeke Bonner, formerly of the White Sox, Washington and Giants? Here is a private in the U. S. army now and detailed as a rifle instructor at Camp Shelby, Miss.

Out Of Hospital

WILMINGTON, Del., April 10.—(AP)—Dupeh Canill and Billy Herman, who have been receiving hospital treatment, have returned to Brooklyn Dodgers with assurances neither is suffering from anything, a few days rest won't hurt. A cold settled in Canill's back and Herman is recovering from a strain of the side muscle.

Ruth Improving

HOLLYWOOD, April 10.—(AP)—"Mr. George H. Ruth, with no usual slouch, is progressing exceptionally well."

This was last night's late bulletin on Babe Ruth's condition, issued by Dr. R. N. Smith, who earlier had reported the former king of awe suffering from pneumonia. After he had said Ruth's condition was "very satisfactory."

Bush Figures In A Wings' Goals

DETROIT, April 10.—(CP)—

The amazing Detroit Red

Wings topped Toronto Maple Leafs two first-period goals

Thursday night and came on to seize their third straight victory, 5-2 before 13,354 spectators in the best of seven

Stanley Cup hockey series.

The hustling Detroiters, accumulating in serious trouble when the veteran Louie Carr of Toronto scored a pair of goals 16 seconds apart, squared the count before the initial period ended on shots

by rookie Jerry Brown and Jack

Carew.

Then young Pat McCreedy, substituting for the injured Sid Abel

Waller, (Detroit) broke in the first period for the deciding goal. Syd

Howe and Eddie Bush also tallied to put the verdict beyond Toronto's reach.

Crushing the favored Leafs

for the third time, the Detroit club finished fifth place in the National League before the start of the play-offs, can close out the series

last night. Last year Detroit lost four straight in the final to

TODAY'S MARKETS

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO, April 9.—(C.P.)—Stocks continued the downward trend today on the Toronto Exchange but individual issues were of more interest than the general market. The main factor in the decline was the drop in the price of oil, which was held to a low level by the market.

Dorothy Dix Says:

Dar Dorothy Dix—What can you do with a husband who won't shut up? I have one who is fine, when he stays at home; only he is hardly ever there. He is the type who is at work, hanging around filling stations, pool room and places like that. Whenver he gets a day off he gets into the first thing in the morning at a breakfast table, and I don't see him until dinner time, and I don't know whether to throw things at him or come home at night, but I think I would feel better if I threw something at him. Are all husbands like that, and is there any cure for it? I am 20 and he is 21 and we have been married six months.

WONDERING.

Answer—Undoubtedly there are some men who are just not domestic animals by nature, and there doesn't seem any way to house-break them. To them a home is just a place where they dump a wife and then beat it.

They love their wives, but not enough to stay with them. They even like to talk about their homes. And sometimes they brag about what good cooks their wives are and how lately they have fixed the house up and how clean they keep it, and what nice lawns they grow, but they prefer the society of the ladies around a golf course to their wives; and they flee from their own flower gardens to the golf course that hangs around the house. And there is nothing a wife can do about it. The women who make the most effort in trying to change such a man, because he is joined to his kind.

DOROTHY DIX.

What To Do

When must letters be written? Answer—There are some letters that must be answered and are considered social duties. Letters of congratulation should be written in response to graduation announcements, engagements, or on the occasion of some athletic or professional achievement.

Letters of sympathy are written on learning of a death—and also on leaving of a friend. Letters of condolence and letters are written after a visit. These are addressed to the hostess and should be written after an overnight visit—or a weekend or longer. Bread and butter letters should be written immediately following your visit.

You would always thank someone for a gift or a favor—and it is much nicer to do it by note than by telephone.

Easy-To-Make Glamour Frocks

Pattern No. 4053

The inexpensive way to glamour is shown in this new frock by Anne Adams, Pattern 4053. Stitch it up with your Sewing Instructor's help in time for those gala parties. The low neckline, soft shoulder collar and bodice garters are so becoming, and the pleated skirt is gathered to match. Twin front panels lend a graceful flare to the skirt. Big polka dots are smart this season, or choose an effective print like this. If you like, make it of plain color fabric.

Pattern 4053 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32.

Send 20 cents in coin for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly for this much before the 30th month of the month.

Send your order to The Edmonton Bulletin Pattern Department, 60 Front St. West, Toronto, Ont.

Your Baby And Mine

It's comfortable and it's wholesome for a baby to sleep on his stomach. Many children take to this position without any training. But, if a baby constantly squirms and cries to be turned over and wants to sleep on his back, why urge him to lie on his side? Either it is a natural and pleasant position or it is of little value to the baby.

Mrs. R.S. wants her baby to sleep on his stomach because she has heard that this is the best sleeping position. At four months he dislikes to stay on his stomach and won't for more than a few minutes at a time. How can I train him to this?

Also, is it too early to start training him for cleanly habits? I was told that it was.

Put him on his stomach when he is awake and turn him over when he goes to sleep. He'll gradually grow to like it better. Meanwhile, don't force him to go to sleep that way. It's all right for a baby to sleep in any position that is comfortable to him just so he doesn't develop a habit of sleeping in only one position constantly. It is really to him and increases his sleeping time if he is changed from side to side or to his back about once every hour. Then he never becomes accustomed of any one position to the exclusion of others.

The baby is far too young for toilet training. It is time enough to start training for bowel habits when he is old enough to sit on a toilet seat for 15 minutes at a time. That won't be much before the seventh or eighth month.

Then take your cue by choosing to present the toilet chair at the hours at which the baby naturally has a movement. This will make for success and encourage him to repeat this success again.

Training for bladder control should await the age at which the child has some personal ability to control his bladder. It is not until before this time makes such frequent attention necessary that children grow weary and antagonistic toward the cleanliness we are trying to inspire.

Begin at 15 or 16 months when the genital-urinary development is such that control may be possible and don't expect too much of the child even though he is intelligent. Be patient if the child is not ready for personal responsibility for this much before the 24th month or thereafter.

For the "Types of Stools," contains information on early training, another leaflet, "Renewing Good Toilet Habits," suggests ways of retaining a child. They may be had by sending a 2-cent stamp.

WOMEN ARE NOT MORE DELICATE THAN MEN

The idea that woman is the "weaker sex" has no evidence from science. From the very beginning of life, it is the woman who is the weaker sex, according to the facts of life insurance companies.

Points For Parents

By EDITH THOMAS WALLACE

Mother: "Kiss and I are getting to be expert rope turners, aren't we? I like to do it because it gives me an excuse to stay out doors for awhile."

Mother: "Don't jump over where sister can see you. It makes her go so mad because she can't jump and run and play as the rest of you children do."

The physically handicapped child who is helped to accept his limitations and remain one of the group will be a better adjusted individual than is the child who is further handicapped by pity.

Plant Garden For All-Season Bloom

GARDEN

Victorious purple asters, red-bronze chrysanthemums! More perennials like more sun than shade, on choice an open spot for years. In planning, consider height! Little hellebore should be placed before taller anemones and rhododendrons.

Water well after planting. When growth is under way, scratch in a little fertilizer before a rain and, after a rain, lightly cultivate the soil.

Simple enough care for so much beauty! Our 32-page booklet tells all about raising garden perennials and annuals, bulbs, roses, vines, shrubs, herbs, trees, lawns. Diagrams right way to prepare soil and prune shrubs; explains what to do about plant pests.

Send 10c in coin for your copy of "How to Plant and Care for Your Garden" to The Edmonton Bulletin, Home Service, 60 Front St. West, Toronto, Ont. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of your booklet.
